SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY ISSUE

GRAUSTARK # 210

23 May 1970

Sirs:

There appear to be doubts in some people's minds over the nature of the war we are now waging. Apparently some wish to see it as simply a "civil war" arising from the unwillingness of privileged elements in the South to accept the verdict of national sentiment. Those who hold this view argue that the Southern leaders, by rejecting national elections, left their opponents no alternative but the use of force.

This is a mistaken analysis, if only in that it ignores the international character of the struggle. The so-called "liberation" movement is worldwide. (One need only recall recent events in British Africa or look closely at trends in Brazil.) But more importantly, this naive wish to see the war as an internal affair in which outsiders shouldn't intervene, overlooks the extent to which the North and South have evolved into distinct societies. Any attempt to reunify them now by force, in accordance with the North's program, would turn the South into a garrison state in which present leadership will be systematically excluded, established customs altered by fiat, and the economy ruined through the breakup of the productive plantations. Those who doubt that the North's intention is to destroy Southern institutions and liquidate a whole social class need only read the proclamation recently issued by the Northern president (who is not, I might add, the benign grandfatherly figure his beard would suggest).

No, under these conditions, the South is fully justified in soliciting foreign assistance in its battle to maintain the right to choose its own form of government. Indeed, the internationally-recognized principle of self-determination would seem to require that all nations avowing this principle come to the South's aid.

Clear the Air

Never dignify a "Comtol" (Communist tolerator) by debating philosophies. Instead appeal to the media which profits pitifully by affording the Comtol a sounding board.

Ask the media to weigh carefully the consequences of its participating with an enemy of freedom. Write the responsible media a personal letter reciting the facts of life (nationally) and get a few friends to co-sign the message with you, each supplying their address and business or professional connections.

The Comtol, however brazen, when robbed of publicity may soon fold and you will enjoy the clear atmosphere you have helped purify.

1970M - PRESS RELEASES

MUNICH: The Kaiser today viewed with disgust the conflict with Italy and Austria. The Kaiser said, "Why can't they fight over something reasonable, like women, or even horses - but over religion is insane." Also, the Kaiser didn't like Italy for a neighbor, at least that close.

LONDON: We will fight them in the fields, we will fight them in the hills...

MOSCOW: The Czar acknowledges the "preferential" treatment of the Austrian High Command and suggests that the future of the empire may be found in Lamentations 1:10 (Living Psalms):

"Her enemies have plundered her completely, taking everything precious she owns. She has seen foreign nations violate her sacred Temple - foreigners You had forbidden even to enter."

ROME (4 May 1902): The Church regrets the invasion of Austria, but we are sure that by now, you can see why we are here. How else can you rid the hillsides of the invading hordes sent there by the Czar? We do not regret the rape of your women, even though some of them were a little young.

NAPLES to CONSTANTINOPLE: The Pope is sure by now that Turkey is in a sad state of affairs. Not only did the Sultan receive word late in the year that the whole of Europe was in a state of total mobility, but now, what do you do if the Russians retreat to the Black Sea?

We must ally, each of us, against the post office and against the gamesmaster in the sky, the rulers of all who deny us the required time to conduct critical diplomacy, say in the event that the Russian fleet does in fact retreat to the Black Sea. Less the Czar is greedy and conveys an army to Ankara in the Spring. ((Sic.)) Perhaps, upon seeing that retreat, you would want to sell your soul to Austria, who by his very own actions has attacked your would-be betrayer. Or, upon seeing the retreat to the Black Sea, you would simply require time for assurances.

But, perhaps you don't need protection from the gamesmaster; perhaps you need protection from the oncoming Italian invasion of Smyrna. Begone, Turk! Release your Harems to this hungry invader.

BOHEMIA (SPP): The Kaiser rode with his troops as they marched into Bohemia today. The Kaiser said, "Well, we might as well take something from this war, even if we are neutral." Later he added, "The Bohemians are really Germans anyway and

The deadline for "Fall 1906" moves is 6 PM, MONDAY 1 JUNE 1970.

CONSTANTINOPLE (3 Mar. 1906): Sultan Teez Akbar declared today all Russian warships were being removed from Black Sea ports in preparation for his Fall vacation on the Crimean Peninsula. A special invitation was extended to Premier Boyer-Lesuaave to join the Sultan in order to finalize plans for carving up Europe. The Sultan promised to have 60 of his prize harem girls on hand for entertainment. Informed Sources say the Sultan has hopes the French Premier might become so overwhelmed with Turkish wine, women and song that Turkey might receive the largest share of Europe.

PARIS (4 Mar. 1906): Premier Boyer-Lesuaave today gratefully accepted the Sultan's kind invitation for a Crimean conference. "While I am not unaware of the special charms of Turkish women (having come in the Casbah many times), I am taking the 40 best members of my bodyguard with me, since 60 girls will not be enough to provide for me during a long stay," declared the satyric Premier, whose normal retinue of females consists of 100.

PARIS (23 Mar. 1906): Premier Boyer-Lesuaave today apologized to the English Ambassador, the Earl of Morral, for doubting British loyalty. He promised to restore London to British rule as soon as possible, while putting the vile Russ-Germanic hordes to flight. "Our Mid-Atlantic fleet is merely a reminder to any who oppose us up North that all they can hope for is annihilation," stated the confident French leader. The Earl and the Premier left to attend the Shocking-Pink Berets' Regimental Dinner and are expected to return in 3 weeks' time.

CONTEST

A free 20-issue subscription will be given for the best response to this contest, which is modeled after those which appear weekly in the New Statesman.

"President Nixon balls his daughters on a nationwide TV hookup. Using the style of any person (a public figure or a GRAUSTARK reader) who has defended the President's previous policy decisions, write a defense of this action of the President." (100 word limit)

Samples might include the following:

Hugh Scott: "What is needed is not politically motivated criticism of the President, but national unity."

Hubert Humphrey: "Perhaps the President shouldn't have gone in there, but now that he's in there, we should all support him."

Rod Walker: "Incest is a necessary part of our role as a major world power. Let us compare Dynastic or Ptolemaic Egypt, Nero's policy in Rome, or the cousin-marriages in which European royalty has always engaged. America, having succeeded these empires in power, must succeed them in the practices which go with power."

Patrick Condray: "In point of fact, such a practice is inherent in the definition of a nation state."

"Meanwhile, Comrade Brusco had invaded the rectory too, bringing further news. 'No, Chief, it wasn't castor oil. It was a bottle of cod-liver oil.'"

THE "WORLD WAR I" VARIANT

Variant Diplomacy games have not flourished in GRAUSTARK, with one exception. A few years ago I tried to set up a two-man game in which each player would represent one of the actual alliances of the First World War, leaving neutral the countries which actually kept out of that conflict. The result was the "WWI" variant, whose rules were printed in GRAUSTARK #107.

Italy, the only one of the seven powers which was still at peace by the end of 1914, presented a bit of a problem. Though committed by treaty to the Central Powers, the Italian government of 1914 very sensibly decided for neutrality. But this was not enough for the Entente, which wanted a base from which to launch warfare against the Central Powers' vulnerable Balkan possessions and satellites. So British agents bribed a Socialist editor named Mussolini to abandon his previous pacifist stance and come out for Italian alliance with the Entente. (One wonders what the British may have thought of their bargain a quarter-century later.)

In this variant, the loyalties of Italy are determined by the flip of a coin following the initial "Fall 1914" moves. So far five games of this variant have been undertaken, whose players are named below. An asterisk indicates the attachment of Italy. Two of

| | Entente Powers | Central Powers |

| WWI-B | James Sanders | Richard Uhr* (won S17) |
| WWI-C | David K. Johnston, Ron Salcedo | David Lindsay* |
| WWI-D | Bruce Gletty | Douglas Beyerlein* |
| WWI-E | Ron Salcedo* (won F16) | Lewis Pulsipher |

the three latter games are still in progress. No further WWI games will be begun, as I am not tremendously interested in this variant, and feel that anything useful that may result from its play will be evident in the existing games.

The WWI games will be conducted by carbon copy, and the results will be published from time to time in GRAUSTARK as space is available. The "Fall-Winter 1914" moves of WWI-C appeared in #200, p. 37. The "1915" moves were printed in #201, p. 9. See #203 for "1915" builds and removals. Ron Salcedo then took over the Entente.

GRAND CASINO, BEAUCCUILLON (4 July 1915): Oddsmakers here refused to accept any bets on the possibility of an Entente victory. After recent brilliant Central Power maneuvering, informed sources said that it was only a matter of time till the Turkish, German, Italian, and Austrian boys were out of the trenches and dining in style under the Arch d' Triumph. Informed sources refused to acknowledge how 25 million troops could squeeze into 14 tables. But then, they weren't taking bets on that, only the Big One - or rather, not taking.

Following "Fall 1913" moves, England built an army in London, and Franco built a fleet in Brest and an army in Paris.

Underlined moves are not possible. The English army in Bulgaria is annihilated. SERAGLIO CITY! No, nucky, you rape the French, and I rape the Turks. Sheesh! (You can't trust those Limeys to remember anything. At least they beat those Frogs; they keep forgetting I'm supposed to win.)

LONDON (1 Apr. 1914, Eben Press): Dr. Ivan Nadyedensky, a member of the recently dissolved Committee to Liberate the Masses Whether They Like It Or Not, and a notorious eschaton-immanentizer, was interviewed by Eben Press.

Reporter: You say that the people support your position, Dr. How, then, do you explain the setback suffered by your committee at Cambridge last month, when only ten people showed up for one of your demonstrations, when over a thousand students petitioned for the retention of the O.C.T.U. program?

Nadyedensky: I refuse to believe it! And if I refuse to believe something, that proves that it is unquestionably a lie made up by the Sinister Monolithic International Warmongers Conspiracy!

E.P.: But this was admitted by the Ranting Radical Rutabaga.

N: I refuse to believe it. Don't try to confuse me with facts, my mind's already made up!

E.P.: And how do you account for the dissolution of your Committee?

N: Its dissolution proves that it was overwhelmed by mass support.

E.P.: But Samuel Bronowski said that it was being dissolved precisely because it was unable to master mass support.

N: HELP! REPRESSION! THIS IS DARING TO QUESTION MY REVELATIONS!

The French army in Smyrna is annihilated, and France retreats A Mun-Tyr. The High Combatant Powers now control the following supply centers:

ENGLAND: Ber, Den, Edi, Hol, Kie, Liv, Lon, Mos, Mun, Nor, Rum, St.P, Sev, Swe, War. (15)

FRANCE: Bel, Bre, Bud, Bul, Con, Gre, Mar, Nap, Par, Por, Rom, Ser, Spa, Tri, Tun, Ven, Vie. (17)

TURKEY: Ank, Smy. (2)

England may build one new unit, France may build two, and Turkey must remove one. Players should send in these "Winter 1914" moves at once so that the deadline for "Spring 1915" moves may be set.

what does Austria want with land as she is giving it away so fast."

One general said it was a purely defensive move to protect "our glorious Beer gardens and Beer maids, and the German Way of Life."

The address of Richard Locke, stand-by in 1970J, 1970M, and 1970W (see GRAUSTARK #209, p. 11.) is 2232 Wesley Ave., Evanston, Ill.

1970M (continued from p. 3): asked to send in "Fall 1902" moves. (See #209 for his address.) The deadline for "Fall 1902" moves is NOON, SATURDAY 6 JUNE 1970.
